Commission looking for senior heroes

RIVERSIDE, Calif. – Superman isn't the only hero older than 60. The Mayor's Commission on Aging is looking for heroes, 60 years and older.

Three seniors will be selected by the commission to be honored on Senior Day, Sept. 15, for their community involvement and contributions to the city's quality of life.

"Senior residents are an important part of the city's social capital – the fabric that makes a city vibrant and successful," said Mayor Ronald O. Loveridge. "This award recognizes special contributions made by our seniors."

Nominees must be at least 60 and be a resident of Riverside. Nominees' support of the arts; service to children, seniors, homeless, disadvantaged youth and handicapped; and courage in the aid of others are some of the criteria the commission will review.

Nomination forms are available at the Office of the Mayor, the Main Library, the Janet Goeske Senior Center and other senior centers in the city. Nominations and the accompanying essay must be received by May 1.
